

ON THIS DAY...

Let us reaffirm that ...
We hold these truths to be self-evident ; that all men are created equal ; that they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights ; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

SOCIETY

Phone 7-3431 Between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Calendar of Events

SUNDAY, JUNE 30

A Mixed Scotch Ball Tournament will be played at the Hope Country Club Sunday, June 30 beginning at 4:30 p.m.

MONDAY, JULY 1

The W.M.S. of the First Baptist Church will meet Monday July 1st at 1:30 in the educational building for a business meeting... followed by the general missionary program at 2:00. The topic for study is "Education for Service."

All Circles of the W.S.C.S. of the First United Methodist Church will meet Monday, July 1 at 2 p.m. in the church.

Those who have volunteered as Candy Strippers, sponsored by the Hope Junior Auxiliary, are asked to meet at the Hempstead County Memorial Hospital Monday, July 1 at 1 p.m. to obtain their uniforms.

TUESDAY, JULY 2

The Hempstead County Republican Women's Club will meet at the Citizens National Bank Tuesday, July 2 at 8 p.m. It will be the first meeting with the new president, Mrs. Jim Pruden, and all members are encouraged to attend.

The Hope Junior Auxiliary will have "4th of July" parties in the local nursing homes Tuesday, July 2 at 2 p.m. Members are asked to consult their schedules for locations.

THURSDAY, JULY 4

The 4th of July entertainment at the Hope Country Club will consist of Ladies' and Men's Golf Tournaments in the afternoon for members and their out-of-town guests, games and contests for the children after 5 p.m., and a picnic for the families at 7 p.m. Members are asked to bring an ample supply of food for themselves, their families and guests. Host couples are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lowe, Joe Hankins, Lyle Moore, W. H. Gunter, Jr., Jimmy Kuwamoto, and Brack Schenck.

BENNETT WOOD HOME SCENE OF DINNER

The Bennett Wood home on the Spring Hill road was the setting for a dinner on Saturday evening, June 22 in honor of Miss La Rae Whitner of Texarkana, bride-elect of Charles Ray Clark of Hope.

The home was beautifully decorated with gladiolus. Dinner was served buffet style. Guests were Miss Whitner, Mr. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Whitner, parents of the bride-elect, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Clark, parents of the groom-elect, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Clark of Arkadelphia, Mrs. Vivian Gunterson of Little Rock and Mr. and Mrs. Ardell Clark of Hope.

The honored couple was presented a silver tray by the hostesses.

Ease Your Tired Feet
Feet are coming out of winter hiding. It's time to groom them for their debut of the sandal season. Complete your pedicure with a brisk rub of an antiseptic to stimulate circulation and invigorate your skin. This cooling lotion has a fresh, clean odor, in addition to easing tired feet, clearing up athlete's foot and preventing infection.

Youth Beat

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

Teens Put It to Parents: Teen panelists at the PTA convention in San Diego, Calif., gave parent audience some food for thought. Exotic food, maybe, but well worth tasting and digesting. For one thing parents were urged to stop flitting around to PTA meetings once in awhile and stay home trying to communicate with their kids. They also indicated irritation at forever being set apart as "teens" in society. Some felt parents were actually too permissive with teens and therefore "allowed" kinds to get into trouble.

PSYCHIATRISTS TRY TO EXPLAIN UNREST: "Speed-up of evolutionary process more than a revolution." "Not a loss of values but a creation of values out of which will come greater values than ever before." "A struggle toward health in search of a universalistic value system." So say the leaders of the American Psychiatric Association. They came up with "the spit on daddy" handle for teen skepticism regarding traditional value systems in religion, politics, economics and other areas. They went on about the brotherhood of man, transcending materialism, abolishing war and creating a real world government. Statement by one man: "We can look at violence as a sign of health. Certainly in seeking values." The same doctor acclaimed the Columbia University strike as "commendable." Goes on to say, "the older generation does well that which is not worth doing." The net outcome of the meeting was to issue a statement urging adults not to panic at youth unrest.

WEARY QUERY: Nancy Sinatra, of the bleached blond locks, has Hollywood guessing. How could her hair be really long, as it seems to be in most of her appearances, when it was so short-short in a recent Hollywood charity fashion show? Even the best wig couldn't possibly hide all that thick long blond hair, or could it? By the by, another dark-tressed Italian daughter of a famous singing daddy now is a blonde bombshell. It's pretty Deanna Martin, daughter of Dean. It's really an improvement. Let's hope Deanna stays blond and beautiful.

Drug Use the Antithesis of Scientism? Are users seeking effect, feeling, sensation, subjectivity?? The pervasiveness of scientific technology in our culture and its trend toward depersonalization is a reason advanced by some medicines for the seeming abandon with which students accept dangerous drugs. One problem: Students in direct "touch" with drugs are far more sophisticated about them than those who seek to teach them about their use! Lawmakers need use-abuse education.

WANTED: A PARENT REBELLION: "Go out and rattle those cages." National Congress of Parents and Teachers heard a call for tough line. Dwelling on the "give us an inch we'll take a mile" theme, students urged saying "no" meaning it but with the ability to back it with "why." For example: double standards (ie: the faculty smokes—the students can't. Also, talk with, not about, your children—but stay in there with strong, steady logic).

MAHARISHI ON THE SLIDE?: Meditation mentor seems to be losing his glow and go. Being abandoned by the publicity set now that the patina has worn thin. Maharishi Yogi, twirling roses, says of the Beatles, "I'll love them whatever they say. As long as they meditate, they will be mine." Meanwhile, the Beach Boys tour with the round little man was mysteriously cancelled "because of the Maharishi's health." A few days after the cancellation the Maharishi was back at work on a film he is making for Four Star International. Described as an "entertainment" documentary shot in India, Istanbul, Athens and the San Fernando Valley, the film will return the International Meditation Society fifty per cent of the profits after the cost of the film has been recovered. The Maharishi founded the I.M. Society, and it isn't clear how much of the money will reach him as he professes a desire to "reach more people." One sure fact—some of his "heat" has vanished with the exodus of the "name" disciples.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

DON'T BELIEVE ALL YOU HEAR FROM GIRL FRIENDS

Dear Helen: I've been going with this boy for five months. My girl friend keeps telling me he is cheating on me while I am at work. She said he takes other girls home in his car.

I asked him and he said he did ride a girl home once.

Now, I get an anonymous letter saying I better keep my eyes open as my boy friend is cheating all the time. The letter is typed.

I just can't stand any more. Every day there is something new about him. He says he loves me and somebody is framing him.

Do you think he's a two-timer? —LOONEY BIRD

Dear Looney: Why not go on the theory that a fellow is innocent until proved guilty. I suppose I should think the same about your girl friend, but just for kicks, I'd check her type-writer against that letter—H.

Dear Helen: You gave "Pixie in a Fix" what-for because she told her fiancé's mother she was shocked by her actions, and no "lady" would come out of the bathroom wrapped in a skimpy towel when her husband and son and his girl friend were present.

Since when is standing up and speaking out against what is wrong, a bad trait? You said Pixie was tactless, I agree. She was offensive and rightly so. Her boy friend and his father should have had enough character and courage to stand beside her, against this lewd woman!

Perhaps the fellow hasn't called back because he is too embarrassed. She might be better off single than to marry a guy who, if he condones such actions, might taint her morals. I sincerely hope she marries someone as courageous as herself, and I congratulate her on having something more people need: Backbone.—REAL AMERICAN

Dear Real: What good is backbone, if it sticks in everybody's craw?—H.

Dear Helen: I agree Pixie has lots of no-tact, but the son (her fiancé) was probably the same for this "fix." If he didn't call first and tell his folks they were coming, then the mother probably barged out of the bathroom as most people do—in a towel—thinking no one but her husband was home. After all, what's immoral in that?

Really, there isn't anything immoral in nudity—just in the dirty minds of observers.—ANOTHER ANGLE

Dear Helen: We hear so much about Hippies and Flower Power (or used to). How often do the good teens, the majority, make the news? I have a suggestion that will cure this:

How about kids starting "PEOPLE POWER?" A flower can only bring temporary happiness, while it lasts, but the happiness people can bring will last forever. If the world can be changed, and I think it can, only people can do it.

My solution? I ask you not to demonstrate or riot. We can change the world for the better by acting as if we really care, smiling at people, no matter what race or color, getting them to smile back; giving extra help along the way; getting involved in their problems and

The suit preference signal is one of the most abused, misunderstood and generally kicked around plays in bridge. Basically when you want your partner to lead a high-ranking suit, you play a high card, while a low-card play asks for the lead of a low-ranking suit.

Since from time immemorial you also play a high card to show strength in a suit and ask for a lead of it, and a low card to show weakness and ask for the lead of some other suit, there is plenty of opportunity for confusion.

South won the opening lead with dummy's ace of diamonds. He could have made 11 tricks at this point by ruffing a second diamond, leading a trump to dummy's 10, cashing the trump ace, returning to his own hand with the king of clubs, cashing his king of trumps and running dummy's clubs. West would ruff the fifth club but South would have had time to get rid of three of his four hearts. South didn't come up with this play but he managed to make six when the defense fell apart.

South simply played ace and 10 of spades and covered with his jack. West took his queen and had to decide what to lead. East had played the nine of diamonds at trick one and proceeded to discard the jack of diamonds on that second spade.

West decided he was asking for a second diamond and obliged whereupon South ruffed, drew trumps and made the rest of the tricks.

East wanted to know if West couldn't recognize a suit preference signal West wanted to know why East could not have spared the nine of hearts. East pointed out that the nine of hearts discarded would have only set South one trick. With all hearts saved West could have led his ace of hearts and eventually used a small trump to ruff the fourth heart lead. We are going to let them fight it out.

What do you do now?

A—We recommend the ordinary bid of six diamonds but if you want to try for seven we suggest barging into Blackwood.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You decide to bid four no-trump and your partner bids five spades to show three aces. What do you do now?

YOUR DENTAL

HEALTH

For hundreds of years, it has been recognized that people whose diets include large quantities of starches and sugars tend to suffer from moderate to excessive tooth decay. It would seem from this observation that carbohydrates play an important role as causative agents in tooth decay, or, at least, are the triggering mechanism in the decay process.

Do carbohydrates act by direct contact with teeth? Or do they change something in our bodies that causes enamel and dentin to break down?

A simple experiment with laboratory animals has shown that it's the direct action of carbohydrates on tooth enamel that does the damage.

In this experiment, one group of animals was fed carbohydrate-enriched diets normally and a control group was fed by stomach tube. Tube-fed animals were free of decay; normal-fed ones had a high decay rate.

This doesn't suggest that, if you love sweets but are concerned about tooth decay, you should take your sweets via stomach tube. But it does suggest that, if you seriously wish to help prevent excessive tooth decay, you should lower your carbohydrate intake.

Of additional concern are the types of carbohydrates ingested, and follow-up prophylactic measures. For instance, if your husband calls you fat and, just for spite, you eat a pound of candy, try your best to: Eat it fast (it seems that the longer teeth are bathed in sugar, the more they decay); avoid chewy caramels (they cling to teeth); go to the nearest dentist immediately afterward to get your teeth cleaned (or at least brush thoroughly yourself).

New Faces in Baseball All Star Game

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It used to be that the casual track and field fan stepped out for a soft drink during the 10,000-meter run and might not return for,
say, the discus or the shot put.

Not anymore, and it won't be so when America's finest launch the two-day U.S. Olympic Trials in Memorial Coliseum on Saturday.

A little guy named Gerry Lindgren changed the fans' thinking on the 10,000 meters when, as a kid of 17 from Spokane, Wash., he taunted and ran away from the Russians in the USA-USSR international meet four years ago. It happened in this same coliseum.

Now a 21-year-old senior from Washington State University, the 5-6 Lindgren will be back to run in either or both the 5,000 and 10,000 Saturday and Sunday.

Parry O'Brien started the new trend toward shot putting when he broke the 60-foot barrier about a dozen years ago. He attended the University of Southern California, Dallas Log of USC carried on and now the unquestioned king is Randy Matson, late of Texas A&M.

Matson will delight the crowd Saturday and perhaps threaten his world record of 71-5½. He has one of the most cultivated grunts in the world of weight men.

If Europe the discus is big,
and today the biggest in the event is a pleasant, 30-year-old Irishman from Smithfield, Utah, Jay Silvester. He'll perform Sunday. Last May 22 at Modesto, Calif., Silvester obliterated the world record of 213-11½ held by Ludvik Danek of Czechoslovakia when he hurled the thing 218-4.

There will be no TV of the trials, neither national or local.
Pianoforte was the original name of the piano.

Ocean Racers Beginning to Reach U.S.

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — After nearly four weeks at sea, the single-handed ocean racers are trickling across the finish line off Newport 3,000 miles from the start at Plymouth, England.

The first two finishers came in Thursday. The 57-foot Sir Thomas Lipton was the first to finish early in the morning, and the 50-foot Voortrekker came in Thursday night. Both are ketches.

Both skippers, Geoffrey Williams of England and Bruce Dalling of South Africa, reported they had rough passages, especially the first two weeks
out of England, when storms with winds up to 60 miles an hour drove across their courses.

There were 48 ocean racers at the start, but by today eight were known to have dropped out because of damages to hulls or spars in the storms. One boat sank.

The Sir Thomas Lipton was declared overall winner of the race, subject to any possible protests. When other boats are in, a winner on corrected time will be declared.

Buzzie's Crystal Ball

Symptom of open tennis' effect on the game: The $170,000 gross of the French Open tripled the best gate of any previous net tournament in De Gaulle, extending back to the days of the Musketeers (Cochet, Borotra, Lacoste) . . . and that despite the upheaval in the Latin Quarter. And at Forest Hills in August, they expect to top all U.S. records by at least $100,000—equal to the purse given the pros. . . .

Down Jamaica way, they can tell you all about the didoes of a famous retired athlete who's gotten himself into a bit of a scrape. . . .

The fact that he has moved to new pastures, as an integral part of the San Diego baseball expansion franchise has not affected Buzzie Bavasi's ardor yet as a Dodger rooter. Or particularly, a Don Drysdale booster. "My kid was reading a baseball book," said Buzzie proudly as Drysedale reeled off his string of victories, "and there was only one reference to me in the chapter on Don." He pointed out.
"It was where I said,
'Some day he's going to be in the Hall of Fame.'"

It's nice to see Fresno
Thompson, erstwhile Columbia teammate of the late Lou Gehrig, taking congrats as the new C.M. of the Dodgers.
But since he's 65, it's apparent Fresno's only performing a holding action until young Peter O'Malley grows into the job. . . .

There is very little vanity about huge Frank Howard of the Washington Senators except when it comes to basketball. He was once an NEA All-American forward at Ohio State when he weighed 30 pounds less. And he carefully points out that Wilt Chamberlain and Elgin Baylor were on the same All-American team. . . . When Frank was with the Dodgers and appearing in a Las Vegas cafe act, he led a pickup team which included Willie and Tommy Davis to an exhibition game victory over the Nevada AAU basketball champs.

Speaking of not being bashful, Billy Casper's hangup is that people keep referring to him as a great putter and not recognizing other aspects of his game. When Oscar Fraley polled the pros to get their selections for the best men in the various shot categories, Casper unhesitatingly picked himself as the best driver, Jack Nicklaus notwithstanding. . . .

The Lee Trevino lore keeps piling up. In his hustler's mindbook, he stipulates, "I just keep the ball in play and hope the other guy'll play bad so I can get some of the money." . . . Old Titanic Thompson, the legendary links hustler, was well aware of Trevino's prowess at "friendly" games, and there's a suspicion he set up at least one well-known tour pro as a mark for the then unknown pro on Lee's home course in El Paso. . . .

Between you'n'me, after his heavy-handed ultimatum about a new stadium or else—and he won't sign a long-term lease if it's in a downtown location—Buffalo people get the impression that Bills' owner Ralph Wilson is determined to move his team ultimately. . . .

Between you'n'me, after his heavy-handed ultimatum about

Batting and Boredom

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Batting, for Harry Walker, is second only to godliness. And talking runs a close third.

When Harry was manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates last season, his 24-hour dissertation on baseball and the foibles of his muscular proteges drove the players into boiling the clubhouse door against Harry so that they could unclutter their thoughts.

But when Harry, recently named Houston Astros manager, discourses on hitting, those interested would be wise to listen. Undisputedly, Harry is one of the keenest students on the art of attacking a horsehide spheroid with an ash bludgeon.

At the beginning of this season, star Astro center fielder Jim Wynn was in a dismal slump. The short, stocky veteran was doing poorer than at any time in his six-year National league career.

"I was lunging, swinging at everything and making contact only with the air," said Wynn. "I needed help. Spec Richardson, our general manager, suggested to me in New York that Harry come to talk things over. At the time, Harry was batting instructor for the organization. He flew in from Denver.

"The very first day, he had me stay after the game and take batting practice. We did this for almost two weeks. It was quite embarrassing at first. Fans leaving the park would stop and ask, 'Hey, what's going on here?' But it was more embarrassing the way I was hurting the team. I needed the extra work and I did it.

"Harry kept talking and working with me.

Superman of Soccer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—
When a fellow is billed as the world's greatest athlete, you expect him to be faster than a speeding Bob Hayes, more powerful than Rosie Grier, able to leap Yankee Stadium in a single bound.

There is a 5-9, 160-pounder from Sao Paulo, who is billed as such. A guy named Pele, who runs patterns like Raymond Berry and who can accomplish with his feet what Oscar Robertson does with his hands.

Pele plays soccer for the Santos team of Brazil—in fact, he is the team. His estimated annual salary of $415-000 is reportedly the highest in sports. But he earns it.

He is the King of Soccer.
But these are rough days for king.

Pele and his Santos teammates have been exhibiting their skills in America lately and in a recent game with Napoli of Italy, 50,000 New Yorkers flocked to watch the world's greatest.

What they witnessed was more like a game of smear
the man with the ball, especially when that man was Pele. His position is called inside left. For someone who has never seen him, this apparently means on the ground.

The Santos offense is built around its star and every time he gets the ball he also gets kicked, tripped, pushed and elbowed—usually from behind. He spends more time on the ground than Tom

Jones.

The few occasions Pele is allowed to display his talent, however, he is unstoppable. Although he is continually triple-teamed and often brutalized, he manages to maneuver the ball around three or four men until tripped. Getting the ball proves just as difficult as doing anything with it and to do this he has to fake one way and go the other way without being forced out of position.
He can play with his back to the basket, as one observer put it.

In this game with Napoli, Pele was responsible for all four of winning Santos' goals.
He scored only once himself, outjumping three defenders to smash the ball into the corner of the net . . . with his head. Two other goals came on penalty kicks, the results of flagrant fouling when Pele had apparently broken loose for a score.

Even the predominantly Italian crowd booed and boasted at Napoli's tactics. But in the dressing room, after the game, Pele refused to criticize his opponents. He said the Italians weren't too rough on him, it was always like that.
He didn't feel anybody was out to get him and, after all, Santos had won, so why get excited about a few fouls.

He added that this is the strategy of his team's offense, to let him draw four or five defenders at a time while a teammate kicks the goal. His true value to the team was evident in the Brazilian's first score.

Pele received a pass and was speeding toward the goal when he was dropped from behind, a clipping tactic that means a 15-yarder in football.
Pele hit the ground, face down as another player piled on.
Soccer players wear no pads so it is understandable he took a few minutes before returning to action.

Moments later, one of Pele's teammates pounced on a loose ball and booted it home. There wasn't a defender to stop him but, only a few yards away, Pele sat on the ground. He had been knocked down again, with three defenders standing over him.

Pele may be king, but the art is his throne.

. . . And the Sage

HARRY WALKER: 'Hitting Is Our Weakness.'

Harry Hangs His Hat in Houston

By TOMMY THOMAS
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—"And now, here is the National League's only undefeated manager," sportscaster Lindsey Nelson said, introducing Harry (The Hat) Walker, who had just won his first game after taking over the Houston club a couple hours earlier.

As the Astros' fourth manager in their seven years in the majors, Walker was given a team that was 15 games out of the league lead and a half-dozen out of ninth place. He follows Luman Harris, Harry Craft and the recently departed Grady Hatton.

Walker, who was released from his post at Pittsburgh last season, was serving as batting instructor for the Astros—a position he said he was happy with—when the promotion came.

"My job was to follow the hitters," he said, "stay in the batting cage with them.
There was no pressure. When the games started, I could sit in the stands and eat popcorn and drink Cokes. I didn't have to worry about things like changing pitchers and missed signs."

Walker, 49, spent the week before in the hospital.
"Muscle spasm," he said.
"Worst pain I ever suffered.
I thought it was a heart attack."

He may find his pain is just starting.

"Hitting is our weakness," he said. "Every club has four starters who can put the ball on the outside of the plate.
The hitters are trying to pull the pitch and they're not even hitting it. That's why there are so many strikeouts."

He also thinks the talent is tapped too soon.

"The guys aren't spending enough time in the minors.
For every guy we bring up too late, 10 come up too soon."

Walker's plan at Houston is to "try to wake up the players and hope for some luck.
I'm not going to try to mastermind the situation right away."

There's the theory that once a guy has been a baseball manager he always wants back in the action. Harry didn't say he had been hoping for the Astros' post but he's obviously gone out of his way not to be critical of anyone in the organization since joining it. He's had a reputation in the past of never winning a contest for saying anything in 25 words or less. His oratory helped get him fired in Pittsburgh, although he still doubts it.

"When a team's winning,"
he says, "and someone's unhappy, who cares? But when you're losing and there's unhappiness, that's when the manager gets in the spotlight.

"But I still have more friends in Pittsburgh than anywhere else. I can walk the streets of that town and people say 'Hiya, Harry' and 'How are you, Harry.' When I went to the Dominican Republic last winter I had dinner with Matty Alou and Manny Mota and when I was in Puerto Rico, Roberto Clemente and his wife met me at the airport and drove me around the mountains."

Oddly enough, the last pennant Walker won was when he managed the Houston Buffaloes of the Texas League in 1956. He hit .328 as a part-time player.

And what about Grady Hatton? "Hell, yes, I'm disappointed," said Hatton. "But I'm not surprised. I knew before the season started that if some key players didn't start hitting the ball, it was inevitable I'd lose my job."

Enter the Hat.
Exit Hatton, with the message that always rings in the ears of the Grady Hattons and Gene Mauchs. "We want to make it clear that we are not blaming Grady for the disappointing record of our club
Etc., etc.

Walker, too, is familiar with it.

Thieu Tells Leaders To Unite

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu has told South Vietnam's anti-Communist political leaders they must join together to win the political struggle that will erupt once the shooting war stops.

As a gesture of reconciliation, he announced Friday that the militant Buddhist monk, Thich (Venerable) Tri Quang would be released from custody within a few days. Tri Quang has been held since the enemy offensive in February because, the government said, the Viet Cong "might make use of him."

Thieu's announcement was greeted with applause by the 200 politicians gathered in the ballroom of the presidential palace — including Roman Catholic leaders who have little sympathy with Tri Quang's near-neutrist views.

About 30 political groups and splinter groups were represented at the meeting. They agreed to meet again Monday — without Thieu — to discuss merging.

Such a mass merger, long urged by American officials, has never made much headway against the traditional fragmentation of South Vietnam's political life.

Neither Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky nor any other member of the government was present when Thieu and the leaders met.

"The war will end one day," Thieu said. "Either the Communists will give up the struggle, or agreement will be reached at the conference table. The day will come when a temporary peace is established, when a political struggle takes the place of the fighting."

To win this struggle, he said, the political groups must unite into one or two political parties able to combat the enemy's attempts to "infiltrate our rear, organize nests of fellow travelers and arouse our people."

"The political parties must organize themselves to win the political battle ahead. If they are successful, perhaps they can make the temporary peace a long-lasting one. If they lose the political battle, then it is difficult to imagine that we will get the same support from the free world that we have received up to now."

Several leaders expressed anxiety over what they said was growing pressure in the United States for a coalition regime in South Vietnam.

Sex, French Perfume for First Nighters

By DENNIS REDMONT
Associated Press Writer

SPOLETO, Italy (AP) — Sex, French perfume, gift-wrapped buildings and a stench bomb greeted first nighters at Gian Carlo Menotti's Festival of Two Worlds Thursday night.

New York soprano Clara Ballew reclined invitingly in a see-through nightgown and caressed tenor Claude Heater of Oakland, Calif., as the couple sang the love duet in Menotti's staging of Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde."

A noxious odor pervaded the first act of the opera after one disgruntled spectator dropped a stench bomb from the gallery. But it was sweeter when a cloud of French perfume was sprayed on the audience for the second act love scene.

Bulgarian-French artist Jean Christy threw the little hill town into an uproar with his contribution to art. He wrapped two buildings in sheets of plastic, first packaging a 30-foot medieval tower and then covering the town's fountain and clock. A white rope tied the packages together.

"Between the nude object and the wrapped object there is a psychological mystery — the difference between illusion and affirmation, the conditional and the imperative," said the artist.

Housewives complained because they couldn't draw water or tell the time.

Novelly, experimentation and avant garde art have been the festival's trademark since Menotti, a 59-year-old Italian-American composer, launched it in 1958 as a showcase for young talent of Europe and America.

More than 100,000 persons are expected to visit the 18-day festival.

Candidate Warns of Gun Penalties

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) —

Frank Whitbeck, the Little Rock insurance executive who is seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said Thursday night that he would invoke stiff penalties against persons using firearms to commit felonies.

Whitbeck said on a panel television program on KAIT, that if elected he would sponsor legislation to provide 10 years imprisonment for the first such offense and 30 years for the second.

"It would be a direct attack on the habitual street mugger or common thief who under the present law uses the firearm in committing a crime without hesitation," Whitbeck said.

He added that he wouldn't sponsor or sign a measure that "will infringe on the constitutional rights of a citizen to bear arms in protection nor will I in any way jeopardize the rights of Arkansas sportsmen to bear arms."

However, another Tucker escapee, Jessie Jones, 22, who was serving 18 years for criminal assault from Pulaski County, remained at large today.

Lake to Be Formed in September

LITTLE ROCK (AP) —

Army Engineers said Thursday that David D. Terry Lake will be formed in Little Rock in late September when the spillway gates on the Terry Lock and Dam are lowered.

The dam is located about 10.7 miles downstream from here. Engineers said the lake would have 43 miles of shoreline and would extend upstream for about 18 miles to Lock and Dam No. 7.

Engineers also said they planned to construct four public recreation areas on the lake, which will have a surface area of 4,700 acres at the normal pool level of 231 feet above sea level.

Vietnamese Communists Are Warned

By BARRY KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) —

Premier Tran Van Huong warned today that anyone directly or indirectly supporting pro-Communist or pro-neutralist policies will be subject to immediate military trial and imprisonment at hard labor.

A communique from Huong's office said the warning was issued because "a number of organizations have recently issued communiques appealing for peace in a rather vague way, sowing confusion among the population."

Citing a 1965 decree by the military junta which ruled South Vietnam at that time, Huong said sentences at hard labor would be applied to:

— "Those who directly or indirectly disseminate the policy, slogans and orders of the Communists, of individuals or groups directed or influenced by the Communists."

— "Those who carry out activities intended to weaken the national anti-Communist will and affect the struggle of the people and the armed forces."

— "Those who attempt and carry out neutral activities in accordance with the Communist policy under the label of peace."

Huong's statement said offenders would be brought before a court-martial within 24 hours. South Vietnam's constitution prohibits procommunism and proneutralism. Persons accused of either leaning were barred from the presidential and legislative elections last fall.

Peace appeals have been issued recently by Saigon students and by the militant and moderate political wings of the Buddhists in Saigon.

The government recently fired a minister without portfolio, Phan Quang Dan, after he said in the United States that his government should take the initiative and seek talks with the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

Gaullist Set To Win Majority

By STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) —

Ignoring opposition protests, President Charles de Gaulle makes a televised appeal today to Frenchmen on the eve of Sunday's runoff round of the parliamentary election.

Anti-Gaullists claim the president's expected attempt to get out the voters, violates a legal ban on use of the state-owned radio and television for electoral propaganda on election eve.

The Gaullists appeared set to win an overwhelming majority in the 487-seat National Assembly after snagging 142 metropolitan seats in last Sunday's opening round. This compared to six Communist seats, four centrist and two Independents.

One political concern among De Gaulle's followers today was voter turnout. Premier Georges Pompidou voiced the fear that many citizens might think the elections were decided in the first round last week, and will leave on holiday outings instead of voting Sunday.

Last Sunday a candidate needed a majority of the votes cast in his district to win. A simple plurality is required in the runoff round, and many of the remaining races appear so close a few votes could determine the results.

De Gaulle called the election during the May-June workers' strikes and student rebellion that at times threatened to topple the 77-year-old statesman's government. Since then he has wooed the voters in a campaign playing heavily on fears of a possible Communist takeover.

On the economic front, rumors of impending devaluation provoked a new and heavy attack on the French franc.

Heavy trading pushed it to the floor against the Swiss franc, despite government insistence that it would hold at its present parity. The French currency has already reached floor level against the dollar—4.9740 francs to $1—and appeared to be nearing the floor in trading for German marks, Italian lire and Belgian francs.

"No one really believes in devaluation right now," said one banker, "but everyone seems to be taking precautions."

Suit Filed Against Grady School

LITTLE ROCK (AP) —

A suit was filed in U.S. District Court Thursday asking that construction on a gymnasium at the predominantly white high school at Grady in Lincoln County be halted until a new desegregation plan for the district is approved.

The suit was filed by the parents or grandparents of 23 Negro pupils who charged that the district's freedom of choice plan had not achieved a "unitary, nonracial school system."

The plaintiffs charged that 90 per cent of the Negro students in the district were attending all-Negro schools. The lawsuit said that the relatively new Negro high school in the district contained no indoor rest room facilities, had no cafeteria and had lacked sufficient ventilation.

The construction on the gymnasium began June 10.

In another case, the U.S. Supreme Court's May 27 mandate in the Gould school desegregation case was received by the court clerk.

The high court instructed Judge Gordon E. Young to proceed further to carry out the court's ruling that Gould's freedom of choice plan had proved inadequate to convert the schools to a "unitary, non-racial" system.

In Normal Times Many Americans Would Visit the Nation's Capital

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

In less turbulent times many vacationing Americans would be going to our nation's capital during this season of the year to see the impressive sites so important in the history of the United States. They are of special significance with the approach of July 4th, Independence Day.

It is hoped that the current strife will soon subside, and that a clean, orderly, beautiful Washington will once again fill the hearts of Americans with pride and the souls of foreigners with admiration. Here, before that is what the city has meant to all who have viewed her.

Among the important points of interest is the national home of the Daughters of the American Revolution. This covers an entire city block, and its D Street address is, appropriately, the historically significant number 1776. The three-buildings-in-one headquarters are the largest and most beautiful group of structures in the world owned and maintained exclusively by women.

Four ladies founded this organization in 1890 at a meeting attended by 18 potential members. Eleven of these women paid application fees and dues that day, a total of $33, and from that beginning has grown a Society with a membership of 185,000.

In Washington, D.C., opposite the park between the White House and the Washington Monument stand the national headquarters of the DAR. Its Memorial Continental Hall has this inscription on the cornerstone, "A Tribute to the Patriots Who Achieved American Independence." The trowel used in the laying of this cornerstone was the same one employed by George Washington to lay the cornerstone of the United States Capitol.

The headquarters of this patriotic group of women have been described as "dignity and beauty in marble and granite." On the south side of the Hall is a 13-column semicircular memorial portico representing the 13 original states, which was the gift of the State Legislatures and DAR Chapters.

Even before the first spadeful of earth was turned, the site and the buildings-to-be had other historic associations. The site was part of the land farmed by David Burnes, the dour Scot who delayed the work of President Washington's road engineers assigned to cut Pennsylvania Avenue through the rippling fields until the crop was harvested. The first contribution of $100 to the building fund was raised at an entertainment given at Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson.

The first Continental Congress (annual meeting) was held in 1892 with Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, wife of the President of the United States at that time, elected the first President General of the DAR.

The basic work of the Society's annual Congress, held each spring during the week of April 19th, the anniversary of the Battle of Lexington, seeks to further its three-fold objective: historic preservation, promotion of education, and patriotic endeavor.

Besides the adequate space necessary for the volume of paperwork needed by an organization numbering 185,000 members, the National Headquarters have other exceptional and noteworthy facilities. These include a Genealogical Library that is considered one of the finest in the country, and a significant

Two Choices For Court Justice

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a tactic Republicans say is aimed at neutralizing Southern Democrats, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield has given his colleagues two choices for chief justice of the United States: Abe Fortas or Earl Warren.

Mansfield said Friday that if a filibuster develops over President Johnson's appointments of Fortas to be chief justice and Homer Thornberry to be an associate justice he assumes and hopes Warren will stay on.

Mansfield took steps to bolster the two-choice position by declaring there would be no delay in adjournment to argue the nominations nor would there be a special session after the political conventions.

Earlier he had held out the possibility of both.

And he also said that if Republicans stage a filibuster, as they have indicated they will, a move to shut off debate will be made quickly.

The hardening of battle lines, however, cast the leadership's ability to do so in doubt, at least for now.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, one of 19 Republicans who have signed a petition opposing the nominations, said Mansfield's tactics were "aimed at Southern Democrats."

He also said the way in which Johnson accepted Warren's retirement could only be interpreted as saying to senators "Okay, boys, accept Fortas appointment or I'll keep Warren around."

Warren's June 13 letter to the president said he would retire "effective at your pleasure." Johnson replied that he accepted the retirement "effective at such time as a successor is qualified."

Warren maintained the silence he has kept since the controversy erupted.

Officials Are Concerned Over GI Morale

NEW YORK (AP) — A high ranking Defense Department spokesman says the department and "responsible military commanders are deeply concerned regarding moral conditions" affecting GIs in Vietnam and other countries.

Maj. Gen. William W. Berg, deputy assistant secretary of defense, made the comment in a letter to McCall's magazine regarding an article in its July edition by Robert Shaplen titled "The Girls They Leave Behind."

The article describes the state of romance between GIs and Vietnamese girls, detailing romances that run from "contract" relationships and casual affairs to marriage.

In his letter to Norman Hill of McCall's, Berg said, "The moral behavior of service personnel is a problem which should and does receive continuing command attention."

He said that "in general, service personnel are neither more nor less moral than when they entered the service; unfortunately, some persist in engaging in immoral conduct despite counseling and advice to the contrary."

The article says that "Despite the fact that about 150 marriages take place each year between American servicemen and Vietnamese girls and there are other relationships, short of marriage, that are warm and genuine, 'romance' in Vietnam has by and large been more calculated, practical, and professional than during any previous war in which Americans have participated."

"Tens of thousands of young Vietnamese girls have become prostitutes 'or have 'contracted' themselves to live with American soldiers on a temporary basis, usually for six or seven months," it says.

The reason more marriages don't result, the article says, is because of the relatively short time most servicemen are in Vietnam, the language barrier, and red tape thrown up by the Defense Department.
